The place that really gave me goosebumps was the Creepy Crawlies room. It had big tanks filled with all kinds of creepy crawlies. We could see them slithering and scuttling around. A large tube was attached to each tank. I tried to look down one of them but could not see much. Then I thought they could be for dropping in food for the animals. I looked warily at them as they looked big enough for the animals to climb out of. But I found out from the guide on duty that they were there for us to stick our hands into. We were supposed to identify the creatures by touching them!

Although I "knew" that I was not in danger of being harmed by any of the creatures in the tanks, I hesitated before gingerly putting my hand down one of the tubes. Even my father (who is terrified of cockroaches) had a go!

Question 52 Primary 5 English » Primary 5 English (Term 1) 0 pts

I was playing with the children next door. I found out that in other people's houses, older children had later bedtimes. I was five years old, and my sister Lisa was two years younger.

I went to my mother with my new-found information, and I advocated for policy change. I was denied.

"This big-sister thing is not what it's cracked up to be. Every time, we do something we're not supposed to do, I get into more trouble. Everybody's always paying attention to Lisa. And we go to bed at the same time. I've had it!" I fumed.

I went to my room, and pulled out my sleepover suitcase. Into the suitcase went my favourite storybooks and my beloved dolls. I did my best to stuff in two pairs of underwear, a pair of shorts and a T-shirt. I went downstairs. In the kitchen, my mother looked up and asked if I was running away. She did not seem as upset as I felt she should be.

"Are you going to Grandma's?" she asked. I could not believe my mother could figure that out. Deliberately ignoring her question, I went out the front door and set off on foot. My suitcase felt like a ton of bricks. Luckily, my destination was just a stone's throw away.

Finally, I arrived. My grandmother informed me that she was very happy to see me, but I was certainly not living there forever. I realised my mother had called and I had been betrayed.

My grandmother said kindly, "I'll get you a drink." Just after she went off to get me some juice, my mother came sweeping in. She sat down in my grandmother's big armchair and she patted her lap. She went, "Come here." I did not want to, because I felt indignant, but I was five and I truly wanted a hug. I got on my mother's lap. She cooed, "Sweetheart, what is it?"

All the pent up anger rushed out of me. "It's not fair! Lisa never gets into trouble. And we have the same bedtime!"

My mother said seriously, "Sweetheart, I don't want you to be miserable. You came first. If it's that hard for you living with Lisa, we'll send her away to the orphanage tomorrow." I started to cry. I knew what an orphanage was. "Don't send my sister there."

My mother reluctantly agreed that we would all go home and give it another try. On our way out of Grandma's house, I noticed that my mother gave my grandmother a wink, and she, in turn, gave a smile. That night, after dinner, my mother gave my sister and me a bath, and then put us to bed at the same time, as she would for many years to come.

To this day, if I turn over my shoulder and say, "Mom, Lisa's being mean to me!" my mother always answers the same way. She says, "You had your chance."
