Old Town Food Street

Return of Street Food

In a food paradise like Singapore, restaurants, cafes, coffeshops and hawker centres are everywhere. Yet, Mr and Mrs Roland Tan missed the experience of eating at roadside stalls. They shared fond memories of the simple and comforting local food served along the old food streets near their childhood homes. The couple had already established two successful restaurants, so when they started the Old Town Food Street, the purpose was not to make profit.

"We wanted to give the people from our generation the chance to take a walk down memory lane and savour local delights prepared from makeshift carts, just like the good old days," Mr Tan said.

"Our grandchildren love local food, but they could never understand why we loved eating by the roadside so much," Mrs Tan added with a chuckle. "So, we wanted to give the younger generation a glimpse of their heritage."

Not surprisingly, the Old Town Food Street has become popular with locals and tourists of all ages. On top of a wide range of local delights, it offers a truly Singaporean dining experience.

Getting There

The Old Town Food Street is located in the heart of Singapore's city centre. It stretches from Teal Lane to Lilac Lane and it is right in front of the Rose Lane Shophouses. The street is closed to traffic after 6 p.m. Patrons can park at a public carpark nearby. Entry to it is only from Teal Lane.

Question 62

Primary 5 English » Primary 5 English (Term 2)

Shirin was still a young girl when her parents sent her away from her home in Tehran to live in a big city in England called London. Shirin did not like the idea of going to live with her cousins in England, but her mother told her, "It is no longer safe here. You will have an exciting new life in England and you will make new friends."

Shirin wanted to cry because she loved her parents very much and she did not want to leave them. "I'm scared," said Shirin as they walked her to the departure gate at the airport. 5

"How can you be scared?" asked her father. "Aren't you the only brave girl in Tehran who was never afraid when the bombs could be heard dropping on the city? And aren't you the girl who always insisted that we take you to school every day even when the other girls were too afraid and stayed at home with their parents?" 10

Shirin's mother knelt down beside her and hugged her. She said, "I know that you will make us proud. And don't you worry, soon we will go to England and you can show us all of the things to see in London. I bet you will be speaking English even better than you do already and you can teach me some new words." 15

"I suppose I could do that," said Shirin as her aunt took her hand and explained that it was time to get on to the aeroplane before it flew off without them.

When the day arrived for Shirin to go to her new school, she was very nervous and tried to convince her aunt that she was too sick to get out of bed.

"I don't want to go," she protested. "I don't know anybody and people will keep staring at me!" 20

"There are lots of girls at school who wear a *chador just like you," said her aunt. "I am sure you will make lots of friends today, you just wait and see." Shirin heaved a sigh of relief.

But it did not go that way at all, not at first. There were indeed other girls who wore a chador, but they were all older than Shirin and they refused to speak to her. The girls in her own class pointed and laughed at her. They all had light brown or blonde hair and blue eyes, and they did not want to make friends with Shirin because she was different from them. She had dark skin and wore a chador. It did not feel good to be so different from others and Shirin wished once more that she was back home with her mother. 25 30

She was downcast and sitting in the corner of the playground during lunch break, planning her big escape back to Tehran, when a young boy named Stephen approached her.

"Don't pay any attention to them. They are mean to me too. My family doesn't have much money and they always laugh at me because I am poor and have dirty clothes. Stephen looked down at his blazer and shoes and shrugged. "They're not dirty, they're just old." Shirin lightened up after Stephen spoke to her and decided not to think about going back to Tehran. 35

Soon the two were running about in the playground. They exchanged stories and Shirin told Stephen all about life in Tehran, and Stephen told Shirin about all the exciting things she could do in London, like play in the big park or go to the zoo. 40

It was not too long before the other children noticed how much fun Shirin and Stephen were having. A big group of them started to gather around listening to Shirin tell stories about life in Tehran and how she had hidden under her bed when she heard the bombs dropping from the sky at night. The children were amazed to hear such stories and could not help asking lots of questions which Shirin was happy to answer. Just then, the bell rang and the children rushed back to class. 45

While walking back to class, Shirin felt a great rush of gratitude towards Stephen because he had shown her something very important. "It is all right to be different. I can be who I am," she told herself. "In fact, it is really quite beautiful." And with this thought held firmly in her mind, Shirin was encouraged to make a new life for herself in England and make her parents very proud. 50
