Alice was not her usual bubbly self ever since she came back from a concert that she had attended.

"Luke, can you look over this letter for me, please?" asked Alice from outside his door. Luke sighed and looked up from his Science book. He took a casual look at the letter that Alice had written to someone called Victoria. He whipped out a pencil and started editing the letter.

As Luke read the letter, he thought that it was another imaginary matter made up by Alice to one of her imaginary friends. "There, all done!" Luke said and returned the letter to her.

Before Luke could even get back to his book, Alice begged, "Now, I need to look up 10 her address. Can you help me, please?"

Luke sighed again and turned to face his computer. "What is her full name?" Luke asked begrudgingly.

"Victoria Sparkle," said Alice.

"You mean the pop star? You cannot just make up some story about your missing chick and send it to a famous pop star, Alice," Luke objected.

"It really did happen! I lost the chick you gave me there but it is not just about my lost chick. If you had read more carefully, I am actually apologising in the letter for causing her fall," Alice confessed. She regretted sineaking her new pet to school that day to show her friends.

Luke typed in "Victoria Sparkle" into the search function. To his horror, he read on the news website about how Alice's kindergarten had mixed things up and brought a group of children to the Victoria Sparkle concert instead of the Singing Pigs concert at the next building. The website also added that a mysterious yellow chick had appeared on the stage and Victoria had trodden on it in the middle of her singing. Then Victoria fell off the stage and passed out, while the chick disappeared behind the stage.

Luke turned to look at his little sister and asked solemnly, "You did all that?" Alice shrugged with a guilty look on her face. Luke took a deep breath. He knew that Alice would not be able to forgive herself for hurting someone. He turned to face his computer again.
