QUESTION OF	visites, o English with minding of English (1911) 17

"I'll be back later, Lily. I know you can manage the store on your own," Lily's father said reassuringly as he fotched his cost and welked lowards the front door. Lily saw his eyes beaming with pride. She was thankful that her father continued to shower her with love and kindness after all the trouble she had caused him. She promised not to repeat her mistakes.

Lify loved climbing trees despite her parents' repeated warnings. She could not remember 5 the countiess times the anded up with a broken arm because of this habit. Her mother had to rush down to the playground and take her to the nearest clinic. Being punctual for school was also a problem as she often stayed up late to read her favourite books. She was reprimanded occasionally by her teachers for being late for school. As a result, she had to spend her recess cleaning the classroom. Once, she challenged a few boys in her class to a race, just to make herself feel good. It landed her in trouble with the discipline master for coming up with the idea and not thinking of their safety in the school. Despite all the troubles she had caused, Lify linew that her parents loved her. They made it a point to celebrate her birthdays and even rewarded her for passing her weakest subject, Mathematics.

Her father, fondly known as Uncle David by his customers, owned a convenience store in their neighbourhood. Lify was also well-known among the neighbours. Surprisingly, it was not for her troubles but her faindness and generosity. There were instances in which she gave items in the store for free to the needy in the neighbourhood. As she did not think it was necessary to inform her failher, she did the kind act quietly. However, she forgot one thing – the cameras in the store.

One evening, while she was helping out at the store with Unde Harry, her father's loyal assistant, an elderly lady came into the store, looking tired. She looks familier, Lily thought, is that filtre Cruz? Lily had not seen her for a while. She lonew filtre Cruz was not well tately. Slowly, Mrs Cruz was not well tately. Slowly, Mrs Cruz was not well tately. Slowly, Mrs Cruz was the headed for the counter where Lity and Uncle Harry were. She took some cash from her purse and spoke settly. This is all I have. Is it enough?" Lity smiled, Mrs Cruz was short of two dollers. Lity did not want to disappoint her and thought of something. After all, Mrs Cruz was their regular customer.

"Hey, Uncle Harry, aren't we having a discount today on this packet of rice?" said Lily winking at him. Uncle Harry smiled. Then she continued, "Let me see how much you have. I think it is enough." Mrs Cruz gazed at Lily, relieved that she could get that bag of rice after all. She smiled as Lily took the cash from her. At that moment, her father came out of the office. He walted up to Mrs Cruz and greeted her. "Thank you, Mrs Cruz. If you need anything from this store, you can talk to me or Lily," her father said to Mrs Cruz before she laft.

Then Lity's father walked towards Lity and looked at her, expressionless. Oh no, Lity thought. Did he know what I just did? Lity wondered what her tather would say to her for giving a discount without his approval. Unexpectedly, he gave her a hug and said, "That's my girt, I know you'll make me proud one day." His words really meant a lot to her. She had done something right. Hmm... she wondered how he knew about the discount she had given Mrs Cruz. Then she looked up and saw the carrieras. He knew it all along, Lity thought and smiled to herself. She resolved to mend her ways and make her parents proud.
