Who is Helping Hands?

Helping Hands is a non-profit organisation that raises funds for many beneficiaries. It was started more than two decades ago by a group of friends who wanted to help the needy families living in Shady Hills Estate. Their actions prompted a great interest in charity work and the organisation grew rapidly. Many people, young and old alike, came forward from all over the island to help the needy.

What do we do?

Helping Hands organises island-wide events to reach out to a greater crowd. We raise funds for the less fortunate several times a year. These include not only the needy but also those who are physically and intellectually disabled and the hearing and visually impaired. Previously, events such as fun fairs, jumble sales and sports competitions were held to raise funds. These events were very successful. So far, all the funds raised have been effectively directed to different charitable organisations, helping both the young and the elderly in the community.

How can you help?

This year, we hope to raise funds for Sunshine Orphanage. This event will provide an opportunity for family bonding and encourage healthy living. If you have never taken part in a marathon before, now is the time to do it! This non-competitive run will help you challenge yourself while doing your part for charity.

Do encourage your friends to join you or form a team with your family!

We also welcome donations of toys and books that are in good condition for Sunshine Orphanage. If you prefer not to run, you can drop your donations into the collection boxes at the event.

We are always on the lookout for volunteers and helpers for our future fundraising efforts. If you wish to volunteer, please email us at admin@helpinghands.com.sg or call Cindy at 65368422.

Thank you

Question 62

Primary 5 English » Primary 5 English (Term 4)

It worried me that Mr Myles fell asleep soon after we left his apartment. "Was he losing his interest in the world?" I sighed as I watched his expressionless face. Mr Myles had lost both his ability to walk and his speech after a terrible illness, so he could not tell me himself. I had always tried to get Mr Myles out for a taste of fresh air in his wheelchair. I did not know about his other nurses but I could not stand seeing someone at home all day and just wasting away.

As we continued along the sidewalk, I was surprised when his arm suddenly came up. I obliged his request at once. To our left was a community garden. We stood still for several minutes, watching two women bent over, each tending to their own little gardening space. Just as we were about to leave, his arm went up again. He twisted and pointed toward the garden. He wanted to go closer. Over the narrow, bumpy path we went. I could see his nostrils taking in the smell of the soil. I had never seen him so keen on doing anything or going anywhere. I was determined that Mr Myles should also have one of his own.

I returned to the garden the next day and set up a large plastic trash barrel at a corner of the garden. I used my pocketknife to cut holes in the bottom of the barrel for drainage, and filled it with dirt. The barrel looked a little out of place in the garden but I needed the added height for Mr Myles to be able to plant from his wheelchair. When I wheeled Mr Myles to the garden later, his eyes lit up. I then showed him some seed packets and a small hand shovel. Mr Myles immediately sat up and reached for the seeds eagerly. I pushed him as close to the barrel as I could. Mr Myles started to dig into the dirt with the small shovel but it kept slipping off his hand. After a while, he passed me the shovel impatiently and started using his hands to dig into the soil. Thirty minutes later, he had planted the seeds of roses, poppies and daisies. On the way home afterward, he smiled as he smelled the dirt on his fingers with satisfaction.

That small circle of earth became a second home to both of us. Mr Myles would gesture impatiently at the door as soon as I arrived every morning. I marvelled at how much energy he could muster to care for his little plot. Before long, the seeds began to sprout. What an amazing sight it was to behold Mr Myles' old wrinkled face inspecting his young tender shoots. His eyes gained back some of their life as he weeded and watered with great concentration.

For a while, we kept to ourselves in our little corner and were rather alone on our gardening journey. However, our solitary status ended as a result of a downpour. When the rain came that day, the other gardeners all ran in the same direction and took shelter beneath a pavilion nearby. The small dry space forced us together. In fifteen minutes, we soon knew the whole band of them.

Most of the gardeners were old. Many grew plants from their native lands- huge Chinese melons, cilantro and many more. Hand gestures were often required to get over language barriers. Yet we were all subject to the same weather and pests, the same neighbourhood, and the same parental emotions toward our plants. If we happened to miss coming by for two or three days, people would stop by our little corner when we returned to ask about Mr Myles' health. We, like our seeds, were now planted in the garden.

Explain clearly why the writer was starting to worry about Mr Myles in the first paragraph.
