Small Steps to Better Health

Midland Mall will be embarking on a "Small Steps to Better Health" campaign to promote a healthy lifestyle among its staff and shoppers. Several events and activities have been lined up to help everyone acquire healthy living habits. Midland Mall is proud to be the first shopping destination in Singapore to support the Health Council's efforts to inspire Singapore residents to build brighter futures by having healthy bodies and minds.

To kick off the 3-month long campaign, Midland Mall staff and their families will participate in the inaugural Midland Walkathon, flagging off at 6 a.m. on 1 October 2018. Midland Mall Loyalty Club members were invited to join in and about 700 of them have signed up for the 5-kilometre walk that will start at Midland Mall, take participants around the beautiful Midland Park, and end back at Midland Mall. Participants can enjoy a leisurely walk along the scenic route and be treated to healthy wraps and smoothies for breakfast after the walk, courtesy of the event's generous sponsor, Hearty Wraps.

Here's a quick peek at what the campaign has in store for you:

Question 62

David Williams spent most summers in the mountains with his son, Charlie. Both were passionate about nature. One fateful day in 2015, around noon, on a mountain at the Bighorn Craggs, Mr Williams and Charlie were about 250 metres above ground level. Charlie stood on a narrow ledge which was a few metres to the right of his father. Safely lashed to a tree, he fed rope to his father. On his way up, Mr Williams accidentally moved a massive boulder. Suddenly, it sailed through the air alongside Mr Williams and hit him. He barely had time to scream before everything went black. When Charlie noticed that the massive boulder had hit Mr Williams, he pulled on the rope. An instant later, an automatic braking device arrested the fall. "Dad!" Charlie called. "Are you okay?" 5

Mr Williams hung 12 metres below his son, hidden from Charlie's view. A minute passed before he managed to call out, "Charlie, are you there?" 10

"I'm here! Are you hurt?" Charlie asked. Beneath Mr William's dented helmet, his head was throbbing from a concussion. His left arm and foot were shattered. A vertebra in his upper back was fractured too. The pain came from so many places that it nearly knocked him out again. With all his might, Charlie assisted his 86-kilogram father back to the campsite. 15

13-year-old Charlie Williams knew that he was the only one who could get help. He got ready for a long hike. He stowed a water bottle and some snacks in his day pack, along with a sleeping bag, in case he had to set up camp. He left another water bottle for his father, filled the cooking pot to the brim with water from the creek and also set out a week's supply of energy bars. Then, he took a map with the location of the campsite. 20

Mr Williams lay pale on his sleeping bag. "Good luck, kiddo! Just take it slow and steady," Mr Williams said quietly as Charlie bade him goodbye. Outside the tent, Charlie paused and mumbled a prayer. "I'm not coming back without getting help for you," Charlie called over his shoulder as he set off. 25

Charlie's destination was the trailhead, 10 kilometres away, where a couple of volunteers lived in a cabin equipped with a two-way radio. Charlie hoped they would use the radio to call for help. He had to take a long time to get there. Grizzly bears and mountain lions frequent the surrounding woods. As he walked, Charlie blew his emergency whistle to ward them off and he thought it would bring him the help that he needed. Following Mr Williams' instructions, Charlie took the detour, calling out to anyone who might be camped there. After a few hundred metres, he stopped to calculate the odds. It was a weekday when there were few visitors. If he continued and encountered no one, he would have wasted an hour. 30

Charlie's hike grew more strenuous. An image flitted through his mind: Dad writhing in agony. Not wanting to give up, he focussed instead on the rhythm of his footsteps. Around the 5-kilometre mark, he thought he heard voices. He blew the whistle and shouted, "Hello! Can you help me?" 35

Someone yelled back, "Sure!"

The next day, at Saint Alphonsus Hospital, Charlie arrived at Mr William's bedside. In tears, Father and Son hugged. Charlie had kept his promise. He managed to get help and rescued his father. "Charlie's as strong as anyone I know," said his father. 40
