West Light Primary School's
Cyber Savvy Programme
 July to November 2018

~ Let's make the internet a better place! ~

Do you know that in the month of February every year, schools all over the world commemorate Safer Internet Day to pledge a safer internet for everyone?

In support of Safer Internet Day, West Light Primary School has lined up a series of activities to educate pupils about the perils of cyberspace. No doubt, the internet can be an extremely useful tool for children but instant messaging, emails and social networking sites can also bring trouble – from cyberbullying to more serious internet dangers, including scams. It is therefore important for children to safeguard themselves against these dangers.

We will be rolling out the Cyber Savvy Programme over the next few months to help pupils navigate cyberspace with discernment and confidence.

SPOTLIGHT ON CYBERBULLYING

What are some examples of cyberbullying?

- Excluding someone online
- Sending hurtful messages, texts or emails
- Spreading false rumours about someone online
- Posting embarrassing photographs or videos of others

How can you stand up to cyberbullying?

1. STAY CALM – An agitated response may trigger more bullying
2. RECORD THE EVIDENCE – Take screenshots or save messages, comments, photos or videos that show bullying
3. BLOCK THE BULLY – Prevent the bully from contacting you
4. CONFIDE IN TRUSTED ADULTS – Approach your parents or teachers for their advice and support

If you know that your friend is being cyberbullied, you can play a part by advising him or her to confide in trusted adults.

What the Cyber Savvy Programme has in store for all of you!

Primary 1 Pupils

E-learning is an important part of school life! Your teachers will take you to the computer labs to guide you through the steps so that you can use your computers at home to learn independently!

Primary 4 Pupils

Sign up to be a Cyber Savvy Champion and enjoy the training camp planned for you! Step up, take the lead and be responsible for spreading important internet safety messages to all your peers next year!

Primary 5 Pupils

For every pupil who completes the activities on the Cyber-Savvy card, he or she can redeem a free keychain at the school library. You will also stand to win attractive prizes.

Primary 2 and 3 Pupils

Cyberspace offers a wealth of interesting and educational tools! There will be trainers to help you discover some of

Primary 6 Pupils

to help you discover some of the most popular ones!

Learn what cyberbullying is about and how you can stand up to cyberbullies! A three-day Be Cyber Smart workshop will be part of your past-PSLE activities!

Calling all P4 pupils to sign up for the training camp to be a Cyber Savvy Champion!

No doubt, the internet can be an extremely useful tool for children but instant messaging, emails and social networking sites can also bring trouble – from cyberbullying to more serious internet dangers, including scams. It is therefore important for children to safeguard themselves against these dangers.

We will be rolling out the Cyber Savvy Programme over the next few months to help pupils navigate cyberspace with discernment and confidence.

SPOTLIGHT ON CYBERBULLYING

What are some examples of cyberbullying?

- Excluding someone online
- Sending hurtful messages, texts or emails
- Spreading false rumours about someone online
- Posting embarrassing photographs or videos of others

How can you stand up to cyberbullying?

1. STAY CALM – An agitated response may trigger more bullying
2. RECORD THE EVIDENCE – Take screenshots or save messages, comments, photos or videos that show bullying
3. BLOCK THE BULLY – Prevent the bully from contacting you
4. CONFIDE IN TRUSTED ADULTS – Approach your parents or teachers for their advice and support

If you know that your friend is being cyberbullied, you can play a part by advising him or her to confide in trusted adults.

Question 62

Clyde had been looking forward to travelling across the country with his family last winter. However, due to the fact that his father was busy at work, the family had to change the holiday plan. The disappointment was initially too much for him. Then, he decided to plan for a similar trip, this time with two friends. However, at the last minute, they too dropped out. By then, Clyde had already resolved to go ahead with his plan, even if he had to do so alone. So he decided to leave with the family car without telling his family. When his father realised that his son had left, he was worried. Not knowing about Clyde's whereabouts, he immediately alerted the police with details of the car.

Meanwhile, Clyde drove steadily on the highway with the car radio as his sole company. His mind wandered to what his father had said before. "An eighteen-year-old is not mature enough to drive across the country alone." Those words bothered Clyde.

10

After travelling for a long while, Clyde decided to stop by a petrol station. It was there that he first saw the little red sports car which thrilled him. He had an eye for that car. The man at the wheel was around sixty and seemed cordial. He somehow reminded Clyde of his grandfather. Clyde could not peel his eyes off the car as the man drove away from the petrol station.

15

After that stopover, Clyde continued with his journey. However, after some time, up ahead on the road shoulder, he saw a familiar car from afar and its owner was waving him down.

"Hi, I was hoping you would come along," the owner remarked.

"What happened?" Clyde asked.

"I don't know. The car just stalled. Can you give me a lift to the next town? I should be able to find a mechanic there," he replied.

"Hop in," Clyde said.

20

About ten minutes into the drive, the man suddenly remarked, "I notice that you don't speed."

25

"I don't want to be stopped by the police," replied Clyde.

Upon hearing that, the man smiled and said, "Me too."

At that moment, the music stopped. A voice said, "We interrupt this programme for a police alert. Authorities are looking for an elderly man last seen in a red sports car. If you have any information about him, call the police immediately." Clyde felt himself grow cold instantly. "Caution: This man is armed and dangerous!" it continued.

30

The man smiled again – this time a sinister one. He took a knife from the inside pocket of his jacket and waved it at Clyde. "Now you know," he said, "why I don't want to be stopped by anyone. So let's take it nice and easy."

35

"What do you want me to do?" Clyde asked.

"You are going to take me to the next town where I can slip out of sight."

Clyde continued driving carefully as he wondered what his father would do if he were in his place. Not long after, a car was fast approaching them. With its siren screaming, it pulled up beside them.

40

Before he put the knife back into his pocket, the man talked through his teeth, "Don't you dare reveal my identity, or you'll be sorry!"

When the police officer approached them, he asked, "Are you Clyde Brenner?"

"Yes, sir," Clyde was puzzled over the question.

"Let me take a look at your driver's licence," the officer requested. Before checking the licence, he glanced at the man at the front passenger seat and asked, "Who's your passenger?"

45

"He's no passenger, he's my grandfather," Clyde answered immediately.

After checking the details on the driving licence, the officer handed it back to Clyde. "Your father's concerned about you. He wants you to call him immediately. Hang on. I'll put the call through for you," said the officer.

As soon as the officer went back to the car to contact Clyde's father, the man leaned over to Clyde and whispered, "Good work, kid. Now, I want to see and hear you when you speak with your father. Remember what I have in my pocket? So, don't try anything smart."

When the call was put through, Clyde did as he was told. As Clyde spoke with his father, the man kept his eyes fixed on him. Clyde could hear his father's voice, clear and anxious. "Are you all right?" his father asked.

"Yes, Dad. You see, I talked Grandpa into going with me," Clyde replied calmly.

"You what?" Clyde's father exclaimed, shocked by his reply.

"Listen to me, son. I understand what you need me to do. Now let me talk to the officer." Clyde sighed in relief.

"Dad wants to thank you," said Clyde as he handed the mobile phone to the police officer. The officer's eyes narrowed as he heard the voice over the phone.

Clyde had been looking forward to travelling across the country with his family last winter. However, due to the fact that his father was busy at work, the family had to change the holiday plan. The disappointment was initially too much for him. Then, he decided to plan for a similar trip, this time with two friends. However, at the last minute, they too dropped out. By then, Clyde had already resolved to go ahead with his plan, even if he had to do so alone. So he decided to leave with the family car without telling his family. When his father realised that his son had left, he was worried. Not knowing about Clyde's whereabouts, he immediately alerted the police with details of the car.

Meanwhile, Clyde drove steadily on the highway with the car radio as his sole company. His mind wandered to what his father had said before. "An eighteen-year-old is not mature enough to drive across the country alone." Those words bothered Clyde.

After travelling for a long while, Clyde decided to stop by a petrol station. It was there that he first saw the little red sports car which thrilled him. He had an eye for that car. The man at the wheel was around sixty and seemed cordial. He somehow reminded Clyde of his grandfather. Clyde could not peel his eyes off the car as the man drove away from the petrol station.

After checking the details on the driving licence, the officer handed it back to Clyde. "Your father's concerned about you. He wants you to call him immediately. Hang on. I'll put the call through for you," said the officer.

As soon as the officer went back to the car to contact Clyde's father, the man leaned over to Clyde and whispered, "Good work, kid. Now, I want to see and hear you when you speak with your father. Remember what I have in my pocket? So, don't try anything smart."

When the call was put through, Clyde did as he was told. As Clyde spoke with his father, the man kept his eyes fixed on him. Clyde could hear his father's voice, clear and anxious. "Are you all right?" his father asked.

"Yes, Dad. You see, I talked Grandpa into going with me," Clyde replied calmly.

"You what?" Clyde's father exclaimed, shocked by his reply.

"Listen to me, son. I understand what you need me to do. Now let me talk to the officer." Clyde sighed in relief.

"Dad wants to thank you," said Clyde as he handed the mobile phone to the police officer. The officer's eyes narrowed as he heard the voice over the phone.

Clyde had been looking forward to travelling across the country with his family last winter. However, due to the fact that his father was busy at work, the family had to change the holiday plan. The disappointment was initially too much for him. Then, he decided to plan for a similar trip, this time with two friends. However, at the last minute, they too dropped out. By then, Clyde had already resolved to go ahead with his plan, even if he had to do so alone. So he decided to leave with the family car without telling his family. When his father realised that his son had left, he was worried. Not knowing about Clyde's whereabouts, he immediately alerted the police with details of the car.

Meanwhile, Clyde drove steadily on the highway with the car radio as his sole company. His mind wandered to what his father had said before. "An eighteen-year-old is not mature enough to drive across the country alone." Those words bothered Clyde.

10

After travelling for a long while, Clyde decided to stop by a petrol station. It was there that he first saw the little red sports car which thrilled him. He had an eye for that car. The man at the wheel was around sixty and seemed cordial. He somehow reminded Clyde of his grandfather. Clyde could not peel his eyes off the car as the man drove away from the petrol station.

15

After that stopover, Clyde continued with his journey. However, after some time, up ahead on the road shoulder, he saw a familiar car from afar and its owner was waving him down.

"Hi, I was hoping you would come along," the owner remarked.

"What happened?" Clyde asked.

"I don't know. The car just stalled. Can you give me a lift to the next town? I should be able to find a mechanic there," he replied.

"Hop in," Clyde said.

20

About ten minutes into the drive, the man suddenly remarked, "I notice that you don't speed."

25

"I don't want to be stopped by the police," replied Clyde.

Upon hearing that, the man smiled and said, "Me too."

At that moment, the music stopped. A voice said, "We interrupt this programme for a police alert. Authorities are looking for an elderly man last seen in a red sports car. If you have any information about him, call the police immediately." Clyde felt himself grow cold instantly. "Caution: This man is armed and dangerous!" it continued.

30

The man smiled again – this time a sinister one. He took a knife from the inside pocket of his jacket and waved it at Clyde. "Now you know," he said, "why I don't want to be stopped by anyone. So let's take it nice and easy."

35

"What do you want me to do?" Clyde asked.

"You are going to take me to the next town where I can slip out of sight."

Clyde continued driving carefully as he wondered what his father would do if he were in his place. Not long after, a car was fast approaching them. With its siren screaming, it pulled up beside them.

40

Before he put the knife back into his pocket, the man talked through his teeth, "Don't you dare reveal my identity, or you'll be sorry!"

When the police officer approached them, he asked, "Are you Clyde Brenner?"

"Yes, sir," Clyde was puzzled over the question.

"Let me take a look at your driver's licence," the officer requested. Before checking the licence, he glanced at the man at the front passenger seat and asked, "Who's your passenger?"

45

"He's no passenger, he's my grandfather," Clyde answered immediately.

After checking the details on the driving licence, the officer handed it back to Clyde. "Your father's concerned about you. He wants you to call him immediately. Hang on. I'll put the call through for you," said the officer.

"Hi, I was hoping you would come along," the owner remarked.

"What happened?" Clyde asked.

"I don't know. The car just stalled. Can you give me a lift to the next town? I should be able to find a mechanic there," he replied.

"Hop in," Clyde said.

20

About ten minutes into the drive, the man suddenly remarked, "I notice that you don't speed."

25

"I don't want to be stopped by the police," replied Clyde.

Upon hearing that, the man smiled and said, "Me too."

At that moment, the music stopped. A voice said, "We interrupt this programme for a police alert. Authorities are looking for an elderly man last seen in a red sports car. If you have any information about him, call the police immediately." Clyde felt himself grow cold instantly. "Caution: This man is armed and dangerous!" it continued.

30

The man smiled again – this time a sinister one. He took a knife from the inside pocket of his jacket and waved it at Clyde. "Now you know," he said, "why I don't want to be stopped by anyone. So let's take it nice and easy."

35

"What do you want me to do?" Clyde asked.

"You are going to take me to the next town where I can slip out of sight."

Clyde continued driving carefully as he wondered what his father would do if he were in his place. Not long after, a car was fast approaching them. With its siren screaming, it pulled up beside them.

40

Before he put the knife back into his pocket, the man talked through his teeth, "Don't you dare reveal my identity, or you'll be sorry!"

When the police officer approached them, he asked, "Are you Clyde Brenner?"

"Yes, sir," Clyde was puzzled over the question.

"Let me take a look at your driver's licence," the officer requested. Before checking the licence, he glanced at the man at the front passenger seat and asked, "Who's your passenger?"

45

"He's no passenger, he's my grandfather," Clyde answered immediately.

After checking the details on the driving licence, the officer handed it back to Clyde. "Your father's concerned about you. He wants you to call him immediately. Hang on. I'll put the call through for you," said the officer.

As soon as the officer went back to the car to contact Clyde's father, the man leaned over to Clyde and whispered, "Good work, kid. Now, I want to see and hear you when you speak with your father. Remember what I have in my pocket? So, don't try anything smart."

When the call was put through, Clyde did as he was told. As Clyde spoke with his father, the man kept his eyes fixed on him. Clyde could hear his father's voice, clear and anxious. "Are you all right?" his father asked.

"Yes, Dad. You see, I talked Grandpa into going with me," Clyde replied calmly.

"You what?" Clyde's father exclaimed, shocked by his reply.

"Listen to me, son. I understand what you need me to do. Now let me talk to the officer." Clyde sighed in relief.

"Dad wants to thank you," said Clyde as he handed the mobile phone to the police officer. The officer's eyes narrowed as he heard the voice over the phone.

Clyde had been looking forward to travelling across the country with his family last winter. However, due to the fact that his father was busy at work, the family had to change the holiday plan. The disappointment was initially too much for him. Then, he decided to plan for a similar trip, this time with two friends. However, at the last minute, they too dropped out. By then, Clyde had already resolved to go ahead with his plan, even if he had to do so alone. So he decided to leave with the family car without telling his family. When his father realised that his son had left, he was worried. Not knowing about Clyde's whereabouts, he immediately alerted the police with details of the car.

Meanwhile, Clyde drove steadily on the highway with the car radio as his sole company. His mind wandered to what his father had said before. "An eighteen-year-old is not mature enough to drive across the country alone." Those words bothered Clyde.

10

After travelling for a long while, Clyde decided to stop by a petrol station. It was there that he first saw the little red sports car which thrilled him. He had an eye for that car. The man at the wheel was around sixty and seemed cordial. He somehow reminded Clyde of his grandfather. Clyde could not peel his eyes off the car as the man drove away from the petrol station.

15

After that stopover, Clyde continued with his journey. However, after some time, up ahead on the road shoulder, he saw a familiar car from afar and its owner was waving him down.

"Hi, I was hoping you would come along," the owner remarked.

"What happened?" Clyde asked.

"I don't know. The car just stalled. Can you give me a lift to the next town? I should be able to find a mechanic there," he replied.
