1 pt

Explore the little-known farms in Singapore!

Written by Angela Chong

Farms? Do we have space for them? Surprisingly, even though less than one percent of Singapore's land area is dedicated to farming activities, there is an array of farms here. Whether you are looking for a family-friendly place to go on the weekends or a place to get away from the hustle and bustle, read on to find out more about some options that are truly a breath of fresh air.

1

Healthful Organic Farm

What are organic vegetables? How are they different? Find out at Healthful Organic Farm! The farm owners can give you a free guided tour to learn about organic methods of growing vegetables, watch vegetables being harvested, try your hand at harvesting, and finally, taste the fruits of your labour. Make fresh salad with the vegetables you have picked, and have it with other healthy snacks prepared by the farm's very own chef, with its very own fresh produce.

Tours are by appointment only. Visit www.healthful.sg to book a tour online at least three days in advance!

Tony's Goat Farm

Did you know you could drink goat's milk? If you have already tried imported goat's milk, you'll find that locally produced goat's milk which is fresh from the farm tastes so much better! Visit Tony's Goat Farm, Singapore's one and only goat farm, to give the best-tasting goat's milk a try! You will not be disappointed! You may choose to take a guided tour to pet the goats, watch them being milked, and have a go at milking them.

Freshly bottled goat's milk and handmade goat's milk soap are sold on the farm.

Opening hours: 10 a.m. – 3 p.m. daily

Admission fee: $5

Guided tours cost $2 per person. Each tour caters for up to 6 people.

3

Perhaps you need a short break. Perhaps you have children who love animals. Farm stays at Miko's Retreat would be ideal weekend getaways!

The farm stays offer guests opportunities to interact with free-roaming animals and learn how a farm works. As buffet-style meals will be served daily, staff must be informed of special dietary needs. Guests have to stay for a minimum of 2 nights. To find out more or make a reservation, call 6410 4100. (Reservations must be made two days in advance.)

Which of the following is a likely reason why readers might not know about the farms in Singapore?

- A. Singapore only has a few farms
- ✓ B. Only a tiny part of Singapore is taken up by the farms
- C. The writer of the article wants to take readers by surprise
- D. The farms in Singapore had never been featured in magazines

QUESTIONS 71 TO 80

(20 marks)

Mrs Soh was reading the newspaper when an advertisement caught her attention. The company, Robots on Wheels, had the perfect solution for her childcare woes. It was offering a free trial for a robot nanny that was able to take care of any child for up to eight hours a day.

"Let's give it a try!" Mrs Soh exclaimed to her husband as she pointed to the advertisement. Their only daughter, Hannah, was enrolling into Primary 1 and they had no one to take care of her once she returned from school. Mrs Soh was desperate. She needed someone to cook and monitor Hannah when she returned home from school. Both Mr and Mrs Soh worked long hours and they needed someone trustworthy to look after Hannah.

"Are you sure you would like a robot to look after Hannah? What happens if it catches fire when it gets overheated? I am sure a human will be a better caregiver than a robot," replied Mr Soh adamantly. Mr Soh looked at Hannah from the corner of his eye and she did not seem very enthusiastic about the idea too. "Maybe we should sign her up for the after-school care that is run by Mr Ong. There, she will be able to mingle with her peers. She will not be so lonely," Mr Soh added. Hannah's eyes lit up after hearing what her father had said.

"With a robot, I am able to monitor Hannah the way I want her to be monitored!" retorted Mrs Soh. Without much discussion, Mrs Soh took her mobile phone out and dialled the number on the advertisement. After talking to the sales representative, Mrs Soh gleefully announced that the robot nanny trial would start the next day. The whole deal sounded too good to be true.

The next morning, the technician delivered the robot. It was white and matronly-looking. Hannah stared at it with her mouth agape. It stood at a towering height of 1.8 m and it was the size of a refrigerator. It looked intimidating. The technician taught Mrs Soh how to charge the robot and programme it before leaving the house.

Mrs Soh instructed Hannah to press the start button. The robot lit up. Then, it boomed in a chirpy voice, "Welcome home, Master Edwin. I am pleased that you are home."

"Who is Master Edwin?" Hannah roared in amusement. Mr Soh shook his head at the robot disapprovingly.

Mrs Soh pressed the shutdown button and tried to programme it again. Quickly, she rebooted the robot and commanded it to cook macaroni soup. Without hesitation, it made its way to the kitchen. When it reached the entrance of the kitchen, it could not open the door and started going round and in circles as though it was dancing. Hannah laughed at the hilarious sight. Mr Soh analysed the situation, considered the competency of the new hire, and said, "I do not think it will be able to get through the door or cook a meal for Hannah when she comes home from school. I suggest you call the sales representative and ask him to remove the robot from our house." Mr Soh stared at the robot in horror as thick, black smoke escaped from the robot.

"I can't," Mrs Soh replied sheepishly as she pressed its shutdown button again. "I have to keep it for a month as I signed a one-month contract with the company or else I would have to pay a hefty penalty." While Mrs Soh was reaching for the contract in the depths of her bag, a newspaper cutting of the robot advertisement fell out. Before throwing the advertisement into the bin, she landed her foot on it, stomping it angrily. After that, she fished out the contract and started reading it again.

Mr Soh smiled haughtily at his wife and said, "I told you so. Humans are better." He then swiftly made a call.

"I finally understand," Mrs Soh replied as she pushed the robot into the storeroom and locked it up.

Why did the advertisement catch Mrs Soh's attention?
