Question 21

Primary 6 English » Primary 6 English (Prelim)

1 pt

For each question, four options are given. One of them is the correct answer. (8 marks)

Career Support Initiative

Launched

Written by Desiree Soo

If you are a student, it is important to start thinking about the career pathway that you aim to take so that you can choose applicable courses to pursue. If you are a fresh graduate or mid-career jobseeker, it is critical that you make informed and well-thought-out decisions when managing your career pathway.

In a rapidly changing world where new jobs are being created and old jobs are becoming obsolete at alarming rates, charting a career pathway may seem like a daunting task for many. Nevertheless, failing to plan is planning to fail, and the good news is, a career support initiative, "My Career", was launched on 10 August 2018 to help current and future workers like you meet your career aspirations and secure quality jobs at different stages of life. Different aspects of the initiative will be rolled out over the next few months.

In the pipeline

- a locally-developed Career Match Test to help students and jobseekers identify suitable career options based on their personalities and interests
- attachments which give selected students opportunities to work in established companies for a few days during school holidays
- company visits which allow all students above 12 to observe how some of the top companies in Singapore operate as well as speak with their top management and employees
- Career Fair 2018 where participants can explore a wide selection of career options and gain valuable insights into current hiring trends

Do what you can to get where you want in life! Visit www.mycareer.sg for more information as well as to register for the various activities. The Career Match Test will be available online after its launch at Career Fair 2018.

Career Fair 2018

Date: 24 November to 2 December
Time: 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. (weekdays)
 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. (weekends)
Venue: Learning Hub Exhibition Halls 1 and 2

Admission is free. Help yourself to complimentary refreshments when you visit on weekdays, subject to availability. Weekday visitors have to be 20 and above.

Question 62

A door opened behind me in the fifth act and I had to scramble out of my chair to make way for Mr Sheridan. I had been in the box watching the first four acts. Mr Sheridan was accompanied by a gentleman and two young people, a boy and a girl a few years older than me. As I ducked out of the way, I caught a glimpse of the sky blue silk of the girl's lace-edged gown and felt a pang of envy. I had never owned anything so beautiful in my entire life.

"Keeping my seat warm for me, were you, Cat?" sneered Mr Sheridan as he rolled his eyes.

"Yes, sir," I replied as I curtsied. The boy was staring at me with undisguised curiosity as if I was something intriguing in a cage in the zoological gardens.

"Run along then," Mr Sheridan said, shooing me away. "Make way for Lord Francis and Lady Elizabeth."

Not needing to be told twice, I quit the box. The rich masters had come to throw out the servants. Knowing that it was pointless to disagree with Mr Sheridan, I left quickly to seek another vantage point to watch the show, Pedro.

Things were not going well for me if I were to get my wish of seeing Pedro. It was now so crowded that I could barely see the stage, being several feet shorter than the men surrounding me. One portly gentleman noticed my predicament as I hopped from foot to foot. He offered his assistance in a most gentlemanlike manner and lifted me up on to a pillar by the entrance where I could hang on by the candle bracket. I now had a superb view over everyone's heads of the stage. I smiled my thanks to him and he tipped his hat most courteously to me.

At last the curtain rose. The stage was empty. On realising this, the men in the Pit began to mutter angrily to each other. They had been promised a spectacle such as they had never seen before in the theatre and now it looked as though they had been duped. I smiled to myself, knowing they were about to witness something that would rival the feats of the most daring rope-walkers at Bartholomew Fair.

The orchestra struck up an oriental tune. The grumbling died away. Then, from the very roof of the stage, a long rope tumbled down. There was a small anchor at its end. It fell on the stage with a clatter. Next came a creaking of ropes and shouts of "Ware below!" and the basket appeared suspended over the stage, swaying slightly. The crowd gasped. Slowly, without a hitch, the basket came down. Mr Andrews, its sole passenger, saluted the audience as it inched to the floor. I held my breath, wondering if Mr Bishop had really solved the problem with the ropes. As the silken rope came into sight, the crowd began to applaud wildly, standing on the benches to whistle their approval.

"Bravo!" bellowed my kind gentleman, mopping his forehead with his handkerchief. The heat of the audience's enthusiasm was making the Pit quite sultry.

The basket touched down and Mr Andrews, a tall man famed for his comic roles, leapt out and bowed. Everyone whistled and clapped.

"Encore! Again!" cried many voices around me.

Mr Andrews held up his hand for silence. The hubbub was quickly stilled.
