UOS

Creative Writing Competition 2020

Calling all students of University of Singapore (UOS)!
Showcase your writing talent!

The UOS Creative Writing Competition was established by Dr Magdelene Lee and Mr Nicolas Lee for budding writers. Mr Nicolas Lee is one of Singapore's best-known authors. His books are available at Big Bookshop.

Prizes to be won!

First Prize: $2000 cash prize, a $500 Big Bookshop book voucher and a trophy

Second Prize: $1500 cash prize and a $300 Big Bookshop book voucher

Third Prize: $300 Big Bookshop book voucher

- * All prize winners will also receive a certificate of achievement.
- * All other participants will receive a certificate of participation and a $50 Cool Supermarket shopping voucher.
- * All 3 winning essays will be published in The Singapore Times on 30 September 2020.

Registration Guidelines

- Information on the competition and registration form are available at <http://blog.UOS.edu.sg/einews>
- Registration forms are also available at the Department of English Language office.
- Please submit your essay to nicolastlee@UOS.edu.sg no later than 30 August 2020.
- Please call Ms Low at 64233988 for further enquiries from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Essay Topic:

With the development of technology, people are now living in a world that is completely different from what it was 50 years ago.

How has technology affected society and the family?

* Your essay should not be more than 5,000 words.

FEEDBACK ON THE WRITING COMPETITION

"The competition is a good platform for young budding writers to be recognised for their writing talent. It also helps to develop language skills that will help them throughout their lives."

- Lindsay Ann, Professor of University of Singapore

We are passionate about supporting this worthy cause. Writing is a discipline that requires resilience, perseverance and commitment – essential attributes that writers should possess in order to succeed. Of course, these attributes apply across other fields besides writing.

-Richard Tan, Editor, The Singapore Times

"I am very thrilled that my essay was published in The Singapore Times. I am now a more confident writer as I know that my work is recognised. Writing has always been my passion and finally, my efforts have paid off."

- Angeline Cheong, First Prize Winner of Creative Writing Competition 2018

Organiser: University of Singapore
 In Partnership with: The Singapore Times
 Sponsored by: Nicholas Lee Foundation

Question 62

Primary 6 English » Primary 6 English (Term 2)

It was dusk. As last-minute shoppers were going home, a thick, white sheet of snow lay over the city. Yet the lights were still burning in the old-clock shop, as George, its elderly owner, worked on a clock he had bought that day. Having finished his work, George stood up and was on his way to the storeroom when a cold rush of air from the front door hit the back of his neck. He turned to meet a last-minute shopper, but his old, wise eyes told him that this was not a shopper. He saw two men, one in his twenties, the other closer to fifty. The older man, Mike, approached the counter with no sign of friendliness in his eyes. His accomplice, Henry, remained at the door. It was then George noticed the shape of a knife and a restless hand in the older man's right coat pocket.

George was able to hide his growing fear as he slowly pushed a notepad and a pencil across the counter. He then pointed to his ears and shook his head from side to side. A quick look of surprise changed Mike's face as he studied the notepad, then turned and said something to Henry. Fear continued to engulf George, but it was kept down by an inner voice that said, "Be still." He wrote on the notepad. "May I help you?" For the first time, Mike looked directly at George and smiled. It was a cruel, mocking smile. They both understood why he was there and why Henry remained at the door. Mike and Henry looked like men who were down on their luck and were now ready to try something they would later be sorry about.

20
The clocks ticked on. George calmly wrote another message. "Do you have a watch or clock to sell?" Mike took out his hand from his pocket and quickly looked at the watch on his wrist. "How much will you give me for this?" he wrote.

George noticed a little shame in the grey eyes looking at him. The watch was of inferior quality and yet had great importance. It was something to be sold and a way out of a bad situation. Knowing that great need had brought this man to his shop in the first place, George asked, "How much do you want for it?" The reply came back on the notepad: "Whatever it's worth."

30
George gave Mike a fifty-dollar note, then Mike seemed to feel a little easier. As they shook hands, George looked into Mike's eyes which seemed to say, "Thank you!" They both knew the watch was not worth that much. Before turning to leave, Mike wrote, "I will be back to pick it up as soon as I can." George took the watch from Mike and placed it in the glass cabinet behind him that were filled with hanging clocks and pocket watches. He was not a pawnshop owner, but at the same time could not reject the needy people who placed their old watches or clocks before him for anything they could get. The items would be there when the owners wanted them back, at the same price he had paid, without an additional cost.

That evening, a sense of gratitude was felt by the three men who stood in the old-clock shop.
