Section G: Comprehension (10marks)

Last Saturday, Andy was caught in a flash flood, along Orchid Road, caused by heavy rain. He tried to get out of his car but to no avail. A few vehicles were stuck in the murky water too. Concerned for his safety, Andy took out his mobile phone and called for help.

Through his window, he saw a woman getting drenched before she could reach the nearest bus stop. While waiting for rescue, Andy listened to the radio for updates on the condition around the area. People were advised to avoid the area. Apparently, a number of pedestrians were stranded at bus stops in the affected area. Shopkeepers in Cramat Road were not surprised by the flash flood as they were used to it whenever it rained. However, it was the worst they had ever experienced. They were relieved that the flood had receded in about half an hour.

All those trapped in their vehicles were only rescued after an hour. Andy heaved a sigh of relief. Rescuers had to wait for the heavy rain to stop before rescuing them.

The Singapore Utility Board (SUB) said that flash floods might occur in future during a heavy rain. The public could stay tuned to radio broadcasts and check SUB's mobile app "MyWaters" for the latest news on the flash floods.

What caused the flash flood?

What can the public do to get flood updates?

Section H: Comprehension (10marks)

Last December holidays, Julie travelled to the Gold Chest. She was initially thinking of visiting the various theme parks and surfing at the beach there. However, in the end, she chose to see what farm life was like instead. It would be a good break from the city life she was used to in Singapore. She decided to spend a few days at a farm owned by Mr Carl who was her father's bosom friend.

5

Mr Carl's farm was nothing like the animal farms that Julie had seen on television. There were no pigs or cows on the farm. Instead, four kingly stallions stood proudly with their silky black manes swimming down their necks and pouring off their shoulders like inky waterfalls. Their brown coat and hooves glistened in the sunlight.

10

During her stay there, Julie looked forward to having dinner with Mr and Mrs Carl and their daughter Rosemary, who was a renowned chef in a five-star hotel. Dinner, consisting of at least ten mouth-watering dishes, was personally prepared and served daily by her gracious hosts.

Being used to the hustle and bustle of city life and its late nights, Julie was puzzled when the dishes were cleared by 8 p.m. Within minutes, everyone went back to their rooms. She returned to her room and tossed and turned in bed till the wee hours of the morning.

15

However, once she got used to the routine of farm life, she started to enjoy her stay at the farm. She decided that farm stays would always have a place in her travel itinerary in the future.

20

Why did Julie choose to stay on a farm?

How was Mr Carl's farm different from the other farms Julie knew about?
