"I'll be back later, Lily. I know you can manage the store on your own," Lily's father said reassuringly as he fetched his coat and walked towards the front door. Lily saw his eyes beaming with pride. She was thankful that her father continued to shower her with love and kindness after all the trouble she had caused him. She promised not to repeat her mistakes

Lily loved climbing trees despite her parents' repeated warnings. She could not remember the countless times she ended up with a broken arm because of this habit. Her mother had to rush down to the playground and take her to the nearest clinic. Being punctual for school was also a problem as she often stayed up late to read her favourite books. She was reprimanded occasionally by her teachers for being late for school. As a result, she had to spend her recess cleaning the classroom. Once, she challenged a few boys in her class to a race, just to make herself feel good. It landed her in trouble with the discipline master for coming up with the idea and not thinking of their safety in the school. Despite all the troubles she had caused, Lily knew that her parents loved her. They made it a point to celebrate her birthdays and even rewarded her for passing her weakest subject, Mathematics.

Her father, fondly known as Uncle David by his customers, owned a convenience store in their neighbourhood. Lily was also well-known among the neighbours. Surprisingly, it was not for her troubles but her kindness and generosity. There were instances in which she gave items in the store for free to the needy in the neighbourhood. As she did not think it was necessary to inform her father, she did the kind act quietly. However, she forgot one thing – the cameras in the store.

One evening, while she was helping out at the store with Uncle Harry, her father's loyal assistant, an elderly lady came into the store, looking tired. She looks familiar, Lily thought. Is that Mrs Cruz? Lily had not seen her for a while. She knew Mrs Cruz was not well lately. Slowly, Mrs Cruz went to a corner and took a small packet of rice. Then she headed for the counter where Lily and Uncle Harry were. She took some cash from her purse and spoke softly, "This is all I have. Is it enough?" Lily smiled. Mrs Cruz was short of two dollars. Lily did not want to disappoint her and thought of something. After all, Mrs Cruz was their regular customer.

"Hey, Uncle Harry, aren't we having a discount today on this packet of rice?" said Lily winking at him. Uncle Harry smiled. Then she continued, "Let me see how much you have. I think it is enough." Mrs Cruz gazed at Lily, relieved that she could get that bag of rice after all. She smiled as Lily took the cash from her. At that moment, her father came out of the office. He walked up to Mrs Cruz and greeted her. "Thank you, Mrs Cruz. If you need anything from this store, you can talk to me or Lily," her father said to Mrs Cruz before she left.

Then Lily's father walked towards Lily and looked at her, expressionless. Oh no, Lily thought. Did he know what I just did? Lily wondered what her father would say to her for giving a discount without his approval. Unexpectedly, he gave her a hug and said, "That's my girl. I know you'll make me proud one day." His words really meant a lot to her. She had done something right. Hmm...she wondered how he knew about the discount she had given Mrs Cruz. Then she looked up and saw the cameras. He knew it all along, Lily thought and smiled to herself. She resolved to mend her ways and make her parents proud.
